Rooter Mayfield was once more in his accustomed place in Rooters' Row, after a long absence, and his presence did much toward putting life in the fans, rooters and enthusiasts, and the players themselves appeared to enthuse considerably, and put ginger in the game.

Rooter Mayfield deserves much credit for the manner in which he piloted the

for the manner in which he piloted the crowd and the players, and it may go down into history that Mayfield won the But the famous rooter was ably as-sisted by the Cherubs, who played fast,

There was just one weak spot, and that was at short, where Barley Kain bravely essayed to fill Gus Klopf's place. Barley is not an infielder, his fort is in the outleid. He can play better than some shortstops who have played here, but as a regular in that position he is not strong enough for the league.

Klopf will be all right in a short while, however, and then the team will be on its proper footing again. Shannon, in right field, is a good substitute for Kain, and will probably be held as a regular sub.

There were several brilliant plays in the game yesterday on both sides, and the crowd of 1.00 cranks was as liberal with its applause for the visitors when they deserved it as they were for the

In the second inning Knox, whom everybody knows as having played in the old Virginia League, pasted the ball over the fence for a homer, and the very next time up he hit for three bags, and from that point he was a favorite, and caught applause even when he failed to connect and fanned in the fifth inning.

The fast playing by Dundon was also applauded and admired, particularly applauded and admired, particularly applauded and admired.

The fast playing by Dundon was also applauded and admired, particularly when he caught Klusman's hot liner on a high jump in the seventh.

Kain's splendid slide to the plate in the fourth was the finest play of the kind ever seen on these grounds and was not only a daring piece of work, but it was beddien.

Hess's play in the fourth in catching Hardesty at third was also applauded.

Umpire Keily is not the most capable official that has werked in Richmond. There have been several better than he. His judgment is bad on balls and strikes, and his decisions on close calls at hase are not of the gilt-edged order. What the papers in the north have said about him, is practically true. He called a foul ball to first base fair and allowed Bishop a hit, and in two plays at the plate of identically the same nature he called one sufe and the other out. His judgment on halls and strikes is atro-

The Cherubs made two runs in the first inning. Shannon had flown out to George when Danny Leahy singled and then secred on Lutenberg's double. Lute went to third on Wheelock's error and secred on the bad throw by George, when he caught Seybold's high one, Hargrove then died at first.

grove then died at first.

In the fourth three more runs were made. Lute took a walk and went down on Seybold's hit. Hargrove sacrificed both runners down a hag and Lutenberg scored on a choice, but Seybold died at the plate. Dundon got to first safe on Seybold's slaughier, stole second and scored on Kain's hit. Barley also swiped second hag and scored on Hess' single. Then Sparks failed to connect and no more runs were made. more runs were made.

It took the visitors three innings to make their runs, one in each time up. Hardesty safed on Kain's error, went down on a steal, was sacrificed by George and scored on a choice. In the second inning Knox went up first and put the leather over the fece, and in the next inning he hit for three bags and scored on Weddige's single.

Klopf is needed in his business Klopf is needed in his business. In speaking of the Paterson-Lancaster game on Friday, which Manager Laroque claimed the Patersons had lost through the poor work of Umpire Keily, in the eighth inning, one of the Lancaster papers has the following comments: "Wonder what President Barrow would have said had he seen Keily's work?" * * "Umpire Keily ought to 'smeke up' and get in the game. He was up in the air in the eighth inning." * "Captain Manager La Roque was 'sore' on Umpire Keily last night. The audience was disgusted with him, as his work detracted from the interest in the game."

While it is presumed that overy possible point of play is fully covered by the rules, there are occasions when even the most efficient of scorers are puzzled. In that last game at Smoketown. Dusty Miller was on third, with one out. Irwin had two strikes, when Jimmy Gardner let go of a fast, high inshoot. If "Popper Bill" had had arms like a gorilla he might have been able to have reached it. Irwin struck at the flying sphere and started for first, while Miller scored on the play. "Officially," but not until after much debate, Schriver was charged with an error.

That the ball was a missed third strike was no fault of "Popper's," for in reality it was a wild pitch. There isn't eny rule that enables a batsman to go to first on a wild pitch, and yet "Barrister James" really made the error that proved so costly.

Nearly every Red in camp discussed the question at the Monongahela after dinner. W. Buckingham Ewing declared: "It ought to have been scored a passed ball. At least, that is the way it used to be scored when I was a catcher. I remember distinctly one similar play in Chicago, when Al Dalrymple struck at a wild pitch that bounded into the grand stand. He got three bases, and I was soaked with a passed ball."

It certainly is an injustice to call such a play as the one on Irwin a missel third atrike, but arguing from the same basis, that old citation by Ewing does not make it clear that a passed ball was the proper distinction to put on that play. Nearly every Red in camp discussed the

FOR A FINISH!

In spite of the unfavorable weather-despite the war turmoil we have completed the busiest May that we have ever had. The enormous selling that has been done-especially in Men's Suits-has completely wrecked many of the lots-so that to-day we have something like four or five hundred suits in broken sizes. We are going to take the medicine NOW-and thereby give our patrons another evidence that Saks DOES serve them always with the greatest generosity.

Beginning To-Morrow Morning Take Your Choice of these Men's Fine Sack Suits.

Out of our regular $10 to $25 grades, which we have divided into three lots, It's conceded by everybody that Saks' Clothing is without peer—and these are SAKS-MADE SUITS. While they are broken sizes the variety of patterns offered is wide and attractive-there are plain Blue and Black Cheviots, fancy imported Cheviots, Cassimeres, Tweeds, and Worsteds—in checks, stripes, plaids, and novelty effects. The beauty of it is, they are all of exclusive patterns. More than at any other time will it be necessary to be prompt, for the quantity of any style is extremely limited.

The Men's Sale is Echoed For the Boys.

We have easily sold, up to date, double as many Boys' Wool Short-Pants Suits as in any previous Spring month. The result is natural-there are dozens and dozens of lots that are reduced to two or three Suits. Remnants are what they are; and as remnants they are going to be sold. Some of the best styles of the season are represented in Double-Breasted Suits, Brownie Suits, Reefer Suits, Sailor Suits. Wherever there's a broken size there's a big bargain. They are All-wool Cheviots and Cassimeres, in plain Blue and Black; stripes, checks, and neat mixed effects, strictly all wool; with double seats and knees in some of the Pants, and careful, strong making throughout every Suit. We've divided them for your choice into three lots. Sizes run from 3 to 15 years.
